Dear Admiral Inman:

Thank you very much for the excellent briefings the Agency provided for my Foreign Policy Seminar on June 11, and for your own thought-provoking insights into the decision process in national security affairs. [redacted] did fine jobs of providing an overview and answering our many questions. I am also indebted to [redacted] of your Training Staff for making the arrangements. All members of the seminar felt they achieved a much better understanding of the Agency's role in the NSC system and the importance of the intelligence function. Your informal and candid comments were greatly appreciated.

Enclosed for your possible interest is the May issue of the Foreign Service Journal which contains an article of mine entitled, "Foreign Policy in the 1980s: In Search of the National Interest." Some of the issues you raised are discussed in my effort here to suggest foreign policy priorities for the coming decade.

Sincerely yours,

[Signature of Donald E. Nuechterlein]
